Chief Glenna J. Wallace

Did Colonel Lewis come with us on the 1832 Removal from Ohio? If not, who was our Chief? Do we descend from Tecumseh’s siblings? Did we go to Kansas in the Civil War? Who were our Chiefs from 1832-1939, the year our first constitution was adopted. These and many others are topics that will be researched in our three year ANA history Grant.

I would like to personally welcome each of you to the second Shawnee History Summit. It is an exciting time for the Eastern Shawnee Tribe of Oklahoma as we continue our commitment to recovering, promoting, and disseminating our tribal history to assure tribal knowledge is preserved for future generations.

You can expect to hear five outstanding presentations from experts in their field of study involving Eastern Shawnee culture, allotments, and history as well as enjoyable presentations from our tribal youth.

Our employees and consultants have worked tirelessly to meet the challenges of our project goals and to excel despite minor setbacks. We should all be very proud of where we are today and excited about where we are headed.

Before I close, I want to thank each of you for attending our history summit. I ask you to stay engaged and help us in reaching our project goals. My personal respect and thanks go out to all of you.

Sincerely,

Glenna J. Wallace, Chief
Eastern Shawnee Tribe of Oklahoma

He has contributed to two other works titled Cohen’s Handbook of Federal Indian Law and Handbook of Federal Indian Law.
Cathleen Osborne-Gowey

Cathleen (Cat) Osborne-Gowey [Eastern Shawnee Tribe of Oklahoma] is an online instructor for Utah State University in the Women and Gender Studies Department. Ms. Osborne-Gowey is also the Director of the Eastern Shawnee Family Violence Prevention Program. Cat has nearly fifteen years of experience working, researching, and writing on issues relating to not only domestic violence and sexual assault in tribal communities, but traditional uses of plants, language preservation, and assisting the King Island Inupiaq community in the documentation of the culture, ethnobotany, and geography of King Island Alaska.

Her education and work experience have allowed her the opportunity to present or participate in trainings in Corvallis, Oregon; Berkeley, California; Kodiak, Alaska; Nome, Alaska; Tucson, Arizona; Albuquerque, New Mexico; Vancouver, British Columbia; Seneca, Missouri; Wyandotte, Oklahoma; and London, England.

She attended Oregon State University where she earned a BS in Ethnic Studies and Master of Arts in Cultural/Medical Anthropology and Women’s Studies. Cat currently lives in Boulder, Colorado with her husband of eighteen years and two beautiful children. When not working, she enjoys spending time with her family hiking, camping, and backpacking in the Rockies.
John P. Bowes

John Bowes lives in Lexington, Kentucky with his wife Sarah and two daughters, Callie and Reese. Because John hails from Connecticut and Sarah is from California, the family travels often to see family and the ocean. He is an Associate Professor of History at Eastern Kentucky University and is now starting his tenth year at that institution. Prior to taking the job at EKU he spent two years as a post-doctoral fellow in the Native American Studies program at Dartmouth College. John received a B.A. from Yale University in 1995 and a Ph.D. in history from the University of California at Los Angeles in 2003.

John's first book, Exiles and Pioneers: Eastern Indians in the Trans-Mississippi West, examines the post-removal experience of Shawnees, Delawares, Wyandots, and Potawatomis from the 1820s to the 1860s. In March 2016, the University of Oklahoma Press will publish his next book, Land Too Good for Indians: Northern Indian Removal, which addresses the complex histories of removal in the Old Northwest Territory. This past work as well as his developing relationships with the people and federally recognized tribes of Ottawa County, the Eastern Shawnees in particular, have led John to make his next book project one that focuses on bridging the gap between the end of the Civil War and the early 1900s. As reflected in his presentation for this summit, John wants to focus especially on the history of allotment and land in northeastern Oklahoma.

He offers his thanks to the Eastern Shawnee Tribe for welcoming him to Ottawa County and for inviting him to participate in what is a tremendous program. He looks forward to all of the conversations and questions that will be part of the summit.
